Dear Friends,

From "Meet the Goats" to the landslide at White Point Nature Preserve, 2011 was an exciting year. Conservancy employees and volunteers exceeded expectations for the habitat restoration required as a condition of the many millions of dollars provided to buy the land that became the Palos Verdes Nature Preserve. We installed plants that support the coastal gnatcatcher, cactus wren and Palos Verdes blue butterfly. The Management Agreement with the City of Rancho Palos Verdes has been formalized, and the preservation of the open space is protected in perpetuity.

Those two words, in perpetuity, represent an extraordinary challenge and inspiration to our collective imagination and vision. We can now look ahead five, fifty, even five hundred years to make sure that the long-term vision of preserving this land for the future guides our work in the present. Challenges include the need to establish an endowment and build reserves for continuing restoration, maintenance, and acquisitions. Thanks to our skilled staff, engaged and active board, hundreds of active volunteers and a supportive and appreciative community, we are well placed to meet these challenges.

In a great year for our Education Program, we reached 25,000 students who have experienced our nature programs. We celebrated that milestone at the White Point Nature Center along with program "graduates" from Para Los Niños.

Many of the above achievements happened during Ken Swensen's term as our Board President. We salute him for his vision and leadership, particularly his theme of connecting people to the land.

The facts and figures you will find in this report are concrete reminders of the vision, commitment, and enthusiasm surrounding the open spaces that we all enjoy and that make such an important contribution to improving our quality of life—now and in perpetuity. We thank you for your continued support and encourage you to dream along with us as we imagine many future generations enjoying this land we love.

Sincerely,

Andrea Vona

INNOVATION IN CONSERVATION

In 2011, the Conservancy implemented a number of innovative techniques to advance habitat restoration, land stewardship and improve open space for wildlife and people. We worked all around the Peninsula, planting new and maintaining recently restored sites.

To achieve greater results in restoration, we strengthened our partnership with the LA Conservation Corps. Our work together focused on additional fire recovery work in Portuguese Bend that included planting three acres of cactus scrub. This mutually beneficial partnership helped the Conservancy repair damaged cactus wren nesting refuge areas, while providing valuable learning opportunities for youth interested in environmental jobs.

We moved west to Three Sisters Reserve in the fall to plant an additional 8,665 container plants of diverse coastal sage scrub species, grown from local seed in our native plant nursery. We also used a large machine to drill-seed four acres of grassland in order to improve germination success. Also in the fall, we planted one acre of riparian habitat and three acres of coastal sage scrub at McCarrell's Canyon. This work to restore riparian habitat and adjacent hillsides will provide habitat for wildlife and reduce soil erosion and coastal runoff in this dramatic canyon.

A "Meet the Goats" event in the spring of 2011 allowed families to see up-close the Conservancy's innovative restoration approach brought to Portuguese Bend to help clear the fire recovery area.

We continue our efforts to aid the Palos Verdes blue butterfly recovery. In 2011 we were able to release 86 butterflies into the wild. With the help of two volunteer groups, who removed weeds and planted butterfly host plants, we developed an innovative patch-habitat program at Linden H. Chandler Preserve that is inspiring others to adopt plots.

Conservancy planted 16,241 native plants in restoration sites

Our nursery grew 25,888 seedlings to use for restoration projects and native garden demonstrations

Conservancy restored native habitat across 12 acres of preserved land

INSPIRATION DRIVES VOLUNTEERS

Volunteers provided a remarkable 14,424 hours of service

Volunteer support generated $348,772 worth of in-kind services

Committed volunteers are the backbone of our organization, keeping the Conservancy's effectiveness high and costs low. Volunteers enable the Conservancy to implement our mission and achieve our goals of encouraging community-based conservation, fostering young environmental leaders, and engaging people to make meaningful connections to nature. These dedicated volunteers give their time and talent to provide essential leadership to the organization. They train the youth and the public as nature walk and education docents, assist researchers as science advisory members, help with office tasks, support community events, improve habitat, repair trails, monitor wildlife and so much more.

In 2011, we presented the President's Award to longtime volunteer Allen Lay, for his work as a member of our Finance Committee. Outstanding Volunteer awards went to Steve Pedersen, Stacy Herman, Mike Baxter, Barbara and George Gleghorn, Bob Douglas and Emmy Reeves.

Stewardship volunteers play a central role in helping us manage the preserved lands. These outdoor volunteers spent 8,726 hours monitoring properties and assisting with restoration. In 2011, hundreds of volunteers helped the Conservancy remove fennel and other invasive plants in targeted areas. We also rely on Boy and Girl Scouts whose award project achievements include replacing broken fencing, improving the nursery, working on trails, and creating the Deena Sheridan Memorial Garden at PV Peninsula High School.

In 2011, the Conservancy expanded our approach to training young volunteer conservation leaders. As part of the Palos Verdes/South Bay Audubon Society's Youth Environmental Stewards Program, we launched the creation of a guidebook for youth leadership training to be modeled across the United States. The program will inspire and encourage teens to become leaders who are able to meet environmental challenges in their own communities.

Educate

EDUCATION IMPACTS 25,000 STUDENTS

In May 2011, the Conservancy achieved a milestone of reaching 25,000 students through nature education programs. Education plays a vital role in the future sustainability of our land conservation efforts. With natural open space as our "classroom," the programs teach important lessons about ecology and confidence to tomorrow's environmental leaders. We gear our school and public education programs toward exposing students to the natural environment in meaningful ways that foster a strong sense of connection with the natural world. Field trips and a classroom-based curriculum aim to increase literacy in the sciences.

Third graders from Eshelman in Lomita, one of the 11 Title 1 schools of the 23 regional public schools served by the Third Grade Naturalist program in 2011.

Techniques focus on student-centered learning, hands-on programming and role-play to engage and motivate young learners. This approach gives them a strong understanding of the local ecosystem, particularly the relationship between native and non-native plant and animal species and their effects on the habitat. It also reinforces conservation and emphasizes ways each person can contribute to sustainability.

The Conservancy held a science forum titled "Field Notes from the Preserves," for the first time. The day-long symposium at the White Point Nature Education Center & Preserve showcased the research results of the Science Advisory Panel and student research assistants and featured lectures by university professors and our Conservation Director.

Two other public workshops were held, "Digging In" and "Eco-Gardening," to help residents learn about using native plants and water-saving strategies for their own gardens. At the George F Canyon Nature Center, the number of scouts participating in badge projects expanded, and our full-moon hikes were an increasingly popular activity.

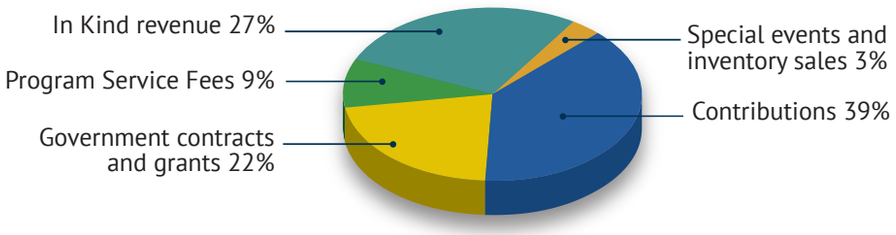
Conservancy school-based programs served 2,953 young people

The two Conservancy nature centers received 9,755 visitors

For research projects mentored by the Conservancy,
9 students earned awards at science fairs

2011 SUMMARY OF REVENUE AND EXPENSES

Revenue and Public Support



Contributions	$630,373
Government contracts and grants	$353,031
Program service fees	$148,721
Interest income, dividends, unrealized gains	($19,230)
In-kind revenue	$450,001
Special events and inventory sales	$53,319
Total revenue and public support	$1,616,215

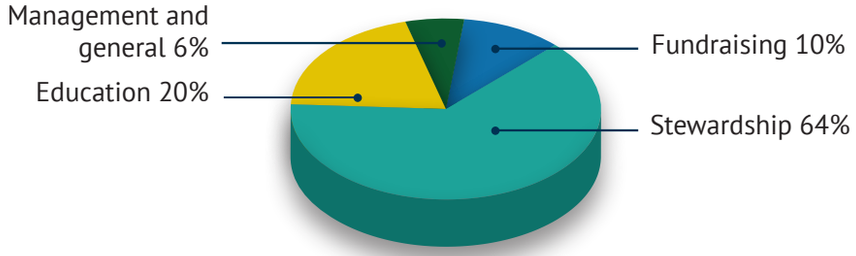
Expenses



Stewardship	$1,100,659
Education	$348,936
Management and general	$103,436
Fundraising	$181,588
Total expenses	$1,734,619

The Palos Verdes Peninsula Land Conservancy receives multi-year grant funding from various sources, which in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles, are recorded in the period received or pledged. However, expenditures related to these grants can occur over several years. As a result, timing differences are created which can have an effect on the changes in net assets.

Vision

Our vision is the creation and management of large blocks of natural open space where visitors may enjoy peaceful solitude, where children and adults can learn about the natural environment, and where locally native plants and animals will exist in a secure environment.
